SESSION DESCRIPTION

Supporting Deaf Culture In the Public School Classroom: The Interpreter's Role

Richard Rose, M.A.

Two languages, two cultures. Deaf children experience life in a myriad of cultural interactions during the school day. This session provides a review of components of Deaf Culture that can be supported in the public schools, using lecture, discussion, role play and other activities. Special attention is focused on the educational interpreter's role in cultural transmission and cultural mediation.

By the end of this session, participants will be able to:

- Define culture as a social construct and list four major components of deaf culture
- List three culturally appropriate activities that can be incorporated into a communications media lesson
- Describe two cultural mediation strategies that can be used in the regular education setting

PRESENTER BIOGRAPHY

Richard Rose, Jr., MA

Hailing originally from New England, Richard "Ricky" Rose and his four siblings are all proud alumni of the American School for the Deaf in West Hartford, Connecticut. Ricky holds a Bachelor's degree in Social Work from Utah State University (2000) and a M.A. from Gallaudet University (2008). He presents and teaches on a variety of topics from Deaf Culture to ASL for both interpreter training programs and professional interpreting organizations; his passion being supporting hearing parents of Deaf/HoH children and community allies in their acquisition of ASL. He currently works for Gallaudet University's The ASLPI as an ASL Proficiency Evaluator. Ricky resides in Maryland with his wife and their combined five children.
